

HORROR MOVIE TRIVIA QUIZ II ( www.TriviaChamp.com )

- 1> What did Alfred Hitchcock famously use as fake blood in his 1960 film "Psycho"?
- 2> Which of Steven King's novels had a brush with Broadway?
- 3> Which horror film was claimed to have had a demon living in its celluloid reels?
- 4> Why was "Poltergeist" actress, JoBeth Williams, afraid to participate in the film's pool scene?
- 5> In the original Friday the 13th film, Mrs.Voorhees does all of the murdering to avenge her son's death at Camp Crystal Lake - how did Jason die?
- 6> Which of these three infamous horror movie villains is the least talkative? Michael Myers, Freddy Krueger or Jason Voorhees?
- 7> What has changed most about zombies in recent horror films?
- 8> Where is the Amityville house located?
- 9> Who is Frankenstein?
- 10> What is the best way to kill a zombie?
- 11> What happens when you lay the dead to rest in the "Pet Cemetery"?

Answers:

1> Chocolate syrup - Chocolate syrup, which shows up well in black and white films, was used for the infamous shower scene in Hitchcock's 'Psycho'. George Romero also used the confection in his 1968 cult classic 'Night of the Living Dead'.

2> Carrie - Carrie, King's first published novel, became a Broadway musical in the late eighties. It was met with harsh reviews and cancelled after just five performances.

3> The Exorcist - Famous Evangelist Billy Graham is noted as having once claimed that there was an actual demon living within the celluloid reels of the demonic possession classic, 'The Exorcist'.

4> Because of the electrically powered lights surrounding the water - JoBeth Williams has been quoted as saying that though actual human skeletons were used for the film's swimming pool scene, she was more nervous being in the water, as it was surrounded by electrically powered lights.

5> Drowning - In Friday the 13th it is revealed that Jason Voorhees drowned due to negligence of the camp staff. Mrs.Voorhees attempts to slay the staff so that the camp is not reopened.

6> Michael Myers - Michael Myers has been the most silent mass murderer. It wasn't until the recent Halloween remakes by Rob Zombie that he is given speaking parts (as a child) and makes any kind of sound while killing.

7> They are faster and smarter - Zombies in modern film have become faster and some have even developed thinking skills. The remake of George Romero's 'Dawn of the Dead' is one of the many films featuring fast moving zombies.

8> Long Island, New York - The Amityville house, popularized in Jan Anson's 1977 book and the films that followed, is located in the Long Island suburb of Amityville, New York.

9> A mad scientist - Victor Frankenstein is the mad scientist who, eager to play God, attempts to create human life. What results is his monstrous creation, which many mistake for Frankenstein. The monster, however, is nameless.

10> Gunshot to the head - A gunshot to head has been displayed as the most effective way to kill the undead in horror films. Zombies are especially difficult to keep down, and bullets to the chest or other areas of the body seem to do little to nothing.

11> They come back as evil versions of themselves - In Stephen King's 'Pet Cemetery', both animals and humans that were buried in the Micmac burial ground cemetery came back as darker half versions of themselves.

Links to Free Trivia on the Net

Movie Trivia Questions
Movie Trivia
Elvis Trivia
Beatles Trivia